Entrance Counseling – Mapping Your Future

Regulations require student loan borrowers complete an entrance counseling session before the University can disburse Direct Loan student loan funds to a student loan borrowers account. The counseling session provides information about how to manage student loans, both during and after college.

Mapping Your Future Online Counseling will allow student loan borrowers to fulfill the entrance counseling requirement anytime, anywhere – all at the convenience of a computer.

Mapping Your Future protects counseling data via a secure web server and the use of password protection. At the end of the online entrance counseling session, the student loan borrower will enter information on a secure form, and the Financial Aid Office will retrieve this information from a secure, password-protected site.

You will need the following information:
• Your Social Security number
• Your driver’s license number, if applicable
